background genetic association studies (gas), candidate-gene and genome-wide association studies assess the association between a disease and genetic variants (gene poly-morphisms) in a population [1]. for a bi-allelic candi-date gene with alleles wild-type wt and mutant-type mt in a case-control study, where mt is thought to be asso- genetic risk for alzheimer's disease is concentrated in ... - genetic risk for alzheimer's disease is concentrated in specific macrophage and microglial transcriptional networks katherine e. tansey1, darren cameron2 and matthew j. hill2,3* abstract background: genome-wide association studies of alzheimer's disease (ad) have identified a number of significant genetic association studies in obsessive-compulsive disorder - methods: a systematic review of genetic association studies in ocd was performed. articles published until 2012 were searched in the databases pubmed, embase and scielo using the terms of mesh and its associates or synonyms for "obsessive-compulsive disorder", "gene" and "genetic association studies". current concepts genomewide association studies and human ... - mined within megabases of dna in genetic linkage studies and within tens of kilobases in genetic association studies. in genetic associ-ation studies, fine mapping implies finding all the variants at the locus and trying to determine which changes may be related to patho-genesis with the use of statistical, functional, or bioinformatic methods. genetic variants associated with response to lithium ... - background lithium is a fi rst-line treatment in bipolar disorder, but individual response is variable. previous studies have suggested that lithium response is a heritable trait. however, no genetic markers of treatment response have been reproducibly identifi ed. population structure and cryptic relatedness in genetic ... - population structure and cryptic relatedness in genetic association studies william astle and david j. balding1 abstract. we review the problem of confounding in genetic associa-tion studies, which arises principally because of population structure and cryptic relatedness. many treatments of the problem consider only using hierarchical modeling in genetic association studies ... - background cancer is a complex disease involving multiple genetic and environmental risk factors. to clarify the contribu-tion of genetic factors and decipher the relationship between genes, environment, and cancer, association studies are generating much genetic information. this has often taken the form of studying single nucleotide statistical methods for genome wide association studies - genetic association studies aim to identify genetic variants that vary between individuals with different disease status (affected/unaffected). in this chapter the genetic background to the subject is presented, explaining concepts and properties which are important for making inference from such studies. 1.1 background developing a network view of type 2 diabetes risk pathways ... - of genetic, genomic and functional data ... abstract background: genome-wide association studies (gwas) have identified several hundred susceptibility loci for type 2 diabetes (t2d). one critical, but unresolved, issue concerns the extent to which the mechanisms through which ... ome-wide association studies, supplemented by analysis of
